

7 Key Personal Preparedness Steps

1. Planning: Create a plan for people, livestock and pets.
2. Preparation: Involve all family members in practicing your plan. Gather all necessary supplies you will need during an emergency. Create prioritized lists of needed actions and go kits.
3. Communication: Families should agree on a place to meet and an out of the area contact through which to communicate, if they are separated.
4. Identification : Provide individual identification for pets and horses (tags, microchips, photos, etc.) Store photos and copies of brand and registration papers away from home.
5. Transportation: Teach all horses to load quickly and safely. Have airline kennels, collars, leashes, harness, and other pet supplies ready.
6. Cooperation: Work with friends and neighbors to help ensure timely evacuation and other emergency care for all animals during a crisis.
7. Involvement: Become involved with your local Animal Response Team or other voluntary emergency organizations in your community.

Durham Animal Response Team (DART)

The Durham Animal Response Team was formed in 2006 under the direction of Dr Steve Levy, a local veterinarian and at the time Durham's Emergency Management director.

The goal of the group is to provide support in the event of an evacuation or natural disaster. They will open and maintain a shelter in conjunction with a Red Cross shelter for their owners. In the event of a natural disaster the group will be able to mobilize to assist animals. They will also be available to assist Durham's other emergency personnel with any animal related accidents or emergencies. DARTs' plans also include providing education to animal owners to help keep their pets safe.

The groundwork has been created. Now we need people-people who love animals and who would enjoy helping them and their owners. If you have pets of your own or just enjoy animals and would like to make sure Durham is prepared to provide the best assistance possible for our animal friends, please contact us.

Building the DART Network

The Durham Animal response team is a locally controlled program under the auspices of the Durham Emergency Management Department . The program is designed to address three main areas:

1. Networking of animal and agricultural stakeholders for emergency planning and preparedness efforts.
2. Coordinating local resources with incident command during disasters.
3. Providing a pathway for public involvement.
